(Grounded Again)

(Warner comes stomping into the room slamming the door on the way. Then he goes back to the door, opens it—)

(Yelling) GROUND ME, I DON'T CARE!

(He slams the door again and looks at the audience.)

I'm grounded again.

It's the third time this week.

And it's not even my fault.

(He goes back and opens the door.)

IT'S NOT MY FAULT!

My Mom blames me for everything my sister does.

Breanna is always getting me into trouble!

A couple of days ago, she took my mom's best lamp and threw it down the stairs.

What a mess.

And then yesterday, she put a metal fork into the microwave and nearly caught the kitchen on fire.

Then today, she put her finger-paints into the washing machine.

Now all my dad's shirts are pink.

And my Mom blamed everything on me.

I try to tell her it's not my fault.

But Mom says I told Breanna to do all those things.

And that is not true!

What I DID tell Breanna is it would be cool if she did all those things.

Which is NOT the same thing!

It's not my fault she wants to be cool.
